

Mary Jane Hominda <maryjane@sips.org>

Building Excellence wards

2 messages

Jerry Gillman <jerry@innovaeb.com>
To: "maryjane@sips.org" <maryjane@sips.org>

Thu, Jan 21, 2016 at 10:37 AM

Mary jane,

Just wanted to supplement our entry information for the affordable housing categories. We requested a copy of electric bills for the houses and the developer advised that the homes caused quite a ruckus when they first were occupied as the homes are producing more electrical energy than they are using and the local power company was in the position of issuing checks to the tenants and such complained to the authorities. My understanding is that rules have been established and the homes are now net zero homes, there are no power bills and the power company is not responsible for paying for the excess energy that is fed into their loop at no cost.

The developer has indicated that he will try and get some kind of backup. Would a statement from the project developer or operator be sufficient?

Thank you,

Jerry Gillman

Innova Eco Building System LLC

305-455-7707

www.innovaecobuildingsystem.com

Mary Jane Hominda <maryjane@sips.org>
To: Jerry Gillman <jerry@innovaeb.com>

Sun, Jan 24, 2016 at 6:13 PM

Hi, Jerry --

The judges review all documentation, and judges always have their own minds. But I think a statement from the project developer should be enough to make the point. I'll include your explanatory email with the submission.

-- Mary Jane

[Quoted text hidden]